PASTORS MEDITATION: 15th SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME. SOWING SEEDS OF THE KINGDOM. (Is. 55:10-11; Rom. 8:18-23; Mat. 13:1-23) Responding to God's word involves receiving it, treasuring it, and putting it into practice. In our gospel today about the parable of the sower, this parable and other parables of Jesus are being told and retold so that His teaching will remain forever in our minds and in our hearts. So, we have no reason to say 'No' to Him. The seed is the word of God that is sown on different grounds. The sower is God Himself. Some ground is good. Some ground is too thorny, some too rocky and some seed fell on the footpath. These grounds represent four types of members in the church or four kinds of hearts. First, the footpath grounds, that is the word of God, the Church and the sacraments are outdated, old-fashioned, irrelevant, unnecessary, unimportant, and have nothing to do with their lives. That is why some would prefer to stay at their homes, watch television or go to movie theatres and watch movies or go to malls, fields to cut hay. They want to worship other things rather than Christ the King. It may also refer to those people who may be caught up with deceit. They do not entertain thoughts and ideas that are opposed to their own. We call them closed-minded Catholics. Second is on the rocky ground. These are the people who start enthusiastically attending church celebrations, charismatic seminars, and other church activities but when suffering and difficulties come in their lives, they often depart and give up. They surrender what they have, even their own faith in God. There is no real commitment. Third is on the thorny ground. This is the type of person who is so busy and so preoccupied with selfishness and pleasures like material accumulation to the extent that prayers and loving or serving others are forgotten. Going to Mass on Sundays is for them a routine and just an obligation, not because they want to give thanks to God. It does not mean that we are against material possessions but rather we are warned that total human development and progress includes the spiritual aspect. So, we can call such people as hunchback because they always bend themselves to look for material well-being and they rarely look at the sky in order to thank God who is the real owner of the things that they have. Finally, the good ground, this symbolizes those persons who hear the word of God and respond to it by applying it to them and bear fruits of good deeds. Jesus said that some seed fell on rocky ground, and it withered for lack of roots. Roots are invisible, unrecognized and forgotten. How often do we appreciate: "the delicious taste of fruits from various fruit trees, like, oranges, mangoes." But how many of us say: "This mango tree or this plant or this flower must have a good root"? Roots themselves are quite ugly. They are dirty, long, thin, twisted. But paradoxically, they reproduce beauty above the ground. Roots are the strength and life of trees, plants and flowers. We can learn three lessons from roots: The first one is, we are always concerned about our appearances, how others see us or with the visible reality. We try various ways to make ourselves better looking. But like trees, flowers and plants, our real value and dignity come from roots and that is we are all children of God. The second is self-denial. We do not do what pleases us but we do what pleases God. Like roots, self-denial is ugly and hard. But like roots, it produces external self-control and selflessness that people admire. Finally, the root that gives us strength is the knowledge and love of Jesus Christ. The knowledge and love of Christ are seen in our words and actions. So, my dear friends let us look at our personal lives basing on this gospel. I have some questions for us to ponder: To which ground do you belong? Are we like the three types of grounds by which the seed, that is the word of God, has no chance to ground and make an influence in us? Do we admire our roots? Have a blessed week! Fr. Leonard Mukibi
